Russians Check Germans In Ukraine

Swell Girl

By RICE YAHNER

With the United States Forces in Northern Ireland, June 27 (AP)—United States troops from almost all states seemed pretty well agreed today that Queen Elizabeth is "a swell girl" after an A. E. F. show for the King and Queen which drew congratulations from the King because of its "impressive efficiency."

Demonstrating everything from bridge-building to doughnut-making, the American soldiers staged an all-out mock battle for the Royal visitors on their three-day trip to northern Ireland. Their Majesties rode in jeeps and tanks, and examined guns, gas masks and field kitchens.

The performance of the Americans led one member of Their Majesties' entourage to remark: "It was the best show put on during the war and the King seems happier than I have ever seen him."

The men who lunched with the King and Queen included:

Paul Scott, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Clarence Bahrec, Pine Grove, Pa.; Milford Schaeffer, Schuylkill Haven, Pa.; Eugene Hutton, La Jose, Pa.; Henry Matschmer, Pittsburgh; James J. Oblinski, Waterford, Pa.; George Rutecki, Philadelphia; Stephen Makowisk, Bridgeport, Pa.; Stanley Konapka, Minooka, Pa.; Joseph Michalski, Minooka, Pa.; James Papada, Minersville, Pa.; Edmund Skarbez, Vandling, Pa.; Whitney H. Carleton, Elkins Park, Pa.; Joseph W. Valley, Broughton, Pa., and Stanley Napersky, Wilkes-Barre.

"Winnie"

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Fort Jackson, S. C., June 24 (Delayed) (AP)—Winston Churchill saw a spectacular display of America's expanding might today at the Army's largest infantry training post, where crack paratroops plummeted from the sky by the hundreds and live ammunition from big field guns whistled directly over his head and burst near enough for him to feel the jar and concussion.

Champing on his fat, black cigars, Britain's Prime Minister inspected Fort Jackson's activities minutely, even prying into soldiers' packs, working the breech block of a 75 millimeter gun, and getting covered with choking, yellow dust kicked up by thousands of feet and hundreds of armed vehicles.

He told a company of sweating, serious-faced infantrymen:

"I know you all are waiting and longing for the day, which is coming, when all this work and preparation will be turned into a mighty effort of war to make sure that right and justice will prevail in the world."

Home Again

London, June 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill came back to England today from his historic conferences with President Roosevelt and stepped from a trans-Atlantic plane into the most serious political crisis of his career.

He returned to a nation troubled by the serious setback to British forces in North Africa and the imminent Axis smash at Egypt. The long-held British stronghold at Tobruk fell while the Prime Minister was discussing war strategy with President Roosevelt and the capture of some 25,000 British troops there brought strong criticism of his conduct of the war.

Facing him in the House of Commons is an insurgent motion for a vote of "no confidence" in his direction of the war.

Von Spiegel

Clearwater, Fla., June 27 (AP)—Baron Edgar von Spiegel, World war 1 U-boat commander and later German consul at New Orleans, may be operating one of the submarines harrassing Allied Nation's shipping in the Caribbean area, according to the story told by an Army lieutenant.

Lieut. John Paxon, survivor of a torpedoed ship, said the commander of the submarine which sank his boat introduced himself to a life boat full of the survivors as von Spiegel, speaking in perfect English.

Other reports of von Spiegel's presence in the Caribbean area have been received, but nothing so definite as Paxon's report yesterday.

Von Spiegel has a thorough knowledge of the Gulf coast area through his peace-time activities.

He remained in the United States until all consulates of Germany were ordered closed. He left supposedly for home via South America.

Hospital Report

Mrs. Michael May, Gardners; Noah H. Spangler, Littlestown R. D. and Curtis Fidenstricker, Hanover R. 3, have been admitted as patients to the Warner hospital. Those discharged were Mrs. Floyd Moritz, Gettysburg R. D.; Mrs. C. Russell Gilbert and infant daughter, Donna Jean, Reservoir street, and Mrs. Russell Fair and infant daughter, Marie Yvonne, York Springs R. D.

FOUR CHARGES FOLLOW RAID AT YORK SPRINGS

Four charges involving violations of the Pennsylvania liquor control act have been lodged against two defendants as the result of a raid at the Steep Roof inn (York Springs hotel).

The charges were filed Friday afternoon and evening by E. F. Weaver, Harrisburg, representative of the Liquor Control board, against Paul Cristofaro, operator of the inn, and William Warner, York Springs R. D., a bartender at the inn.

Posts Bail for Court

The informations filed before Justice of the Peace John H. Basehore charge Cristofaro with making sales of beer to intoxicated persons; permitting minors not under proper supervision to frequent the inn, and possessing liquor on premises licensed for malt beverages.

Cristofaro waived hearings before the justice and posted $500 bail on each of the three charges for his appearance in August court.

Warner was charged with making sales of beer to intoxicated persons, according to the information filed by Officer Weaver. Warner pleaded guilty to the charge and was lodged in the county jail. Later Friday evening he posted $500 bail for August court and was released from jail.

8 Officers in Raid

Eight officers, led by Norman Hunter, assistant supervisor of the Harrisburg district of the Liquor Control board, and by Corp. F. C. Russell, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, conducted the raid at the inn on June 5.

The charges are based on violations that are alleged to have occurred on May 22, 23 and 30.

CARRIERS NEAR HALF-MILLION MARK IN SALES

When the 28th week of the sale of war stamps and bonds by The Gettysburg Times carriers closed on Friday it was revealed that the total for the entire campaign had reached 406,743 ten-cent stamps or their equivalent in bonds.

The official "boy" agents of the United States Treasury are nearing the "last" lap toward their half-million mark of stamps sold in the campaign in Gettysburg and Adams county.

The sale of the stamps is a testimony to the patriotism and fine work of the carrier boys as well as the patriotism of The Gettysburg Times subscribers, officials in charge of the campaign declared today.

The Times congratulates the 17

Uncle Sam's highest award for carrier boys which was won by J. Henry Hershey.

official "salesmen" out of an organization of more than 50 newspaper boys.

Hershey On Top

J. Henry Hershey, of Cashtown, leads the carriers in total sales for last week and the total for the entire campaign. Henry is the first carrier to earn the highest honor award—the Blue Victory "V" emblem—for selling at least 76,312 ten-cent stamps. He has earned every emblem offered by the Defense Savings Staff of the Treasury department in Washington. Young Hershey sold 16,050 stamps for the week ending Friday. This boosted his total sales in 24 weeks to 78,390 stamps.

The week's second honors go to Robert Sternat, of Biglerville, who sold 1,711 stamps. James Bucher, of Aspers, is third for the week with sales amounting to 637 stamps.

Some On Farms

Young Sternat is in second place for total sales during 28 weeks. He has sold 50,505 stamps. John Schwartz, of Gettysburg, sold 43,670 stamps to place third.

Robert Coffield, son of Mrs. Martha Coffield, East Middle street, became a new official stamp agent last week. He is carrying the route formerly

Wanted: Donors for Plasma Bank at Annie M. Warner Hospital

Do you want to become a "stockholder" in a "bank?"

You do? Fine! Now all you need do is notify the Annie M. Warner hospital that you want to offer some of you blood for its "blood bank."

Then in a very short time you will be able to take your place with the other "stockholders"—there are twelve already—in an organization that will pay "dividends" in the amount of help it can bring to sufferers in an emergency. In the present state of world affairs, any community may be called upon to face real emergencies on very short notice and the best way to deal with emergencies is to be prepared.

Of course, anyone planning to participate in a new venture should know all the details. Therefore, it is the purpose of the following paragraphs to explain in detail the operation of the "blood bank" at the Warner hospital.

Use of Plasma

The most important word in this article is "plasma" and the layman must know what it means. Plasma is defined as the fluid part of unclotted blood. It contains three principal ingredients — (a) protein; (b) prothrombin (clotting factor), and (c) complement (the disease resisting portion of the blood).

The purpose of the "blood bank" is to have enough plasma on hand for use in an emergency when blood transfusions are necessary.

The plasma process starts in the operating room at the hospital when about one-half pint of blood is taken from a donor. The blood is placed in an air-tight bttle and at the same time some of the blood is placed in two tubes.

The blood in one of the tubes is given the Kline and Kolmer tests for a veneral disease. The blood from the second tube is used to determine its type. Typing of the blood is done merely for the record, inasmuch as the plasma method of transfusions does not depend upon the type of blood drawn from a donor.

Blood Is Checked

After it has been determined that the blood is free from any disease that might be transmitted in a transfusion, the most important step in the creation of the "blood bank" follows.

The blood taken from a donor is kept in a refrigerator from one to four days before it is placed in the centrifuge—the device that separates the plasma from the red cells in the blood.

Due to this delicate operation of

Graeffenburg Pleases Many At Inspection

The new Graeffenburg inn, near Caledonia, won the enthusiastic praise of scores of visitors from Gettysburg, Chambersburg and elsewhere who braved the elements on Friday evening to attend the public inspection of the newly rebuilt property.

M. C. Jones, James Kirkwood and John S. Rice, lessees of the inn and the Caledonia golf course, who directed the extensive remodeling and refurnishing program, and O. H. Hostetter, of Hanover, the builder, received congratulations from everyone on the finished structure which in design, decorations and furnishings will rank among the best small inns in the country.

Mr. Rice, now a major in the U.S. Air Corps, and completing his training course at the intelligence school in Harrisburg, could not be present at the opening.

Mr. Jones, Mr. Kirkwood and Miss Margaret E. Lunn, the manager, were on hand to greet visitors and to personally conduct them through the property. For nearly four hours visitors inspected the lobby, lounges, dining rooms, kitchen, storerooms and the beautifully appointed bedrooms as well as the locker and shower rooms in the basement which provide complete club facilities for golfers using the adjoining Caledonia golf course.

Receive First Guests

Although the inn was not to be open for business until today, guests presented themselves Thursday and Friday evenings and insisted on being accomodated.

The Misses Anna D. Halberg and Charlotte Elliott, of Washington, D. C., were the first guests received at the inn. They arrived Thursday night and departed the following day.

The inn has twenty bedrooms, each with bath. There are two dining rooms with a capacity to serve 150 people. Wide sun and shade porches are comfortably furnished.

PROPERTY TRANSFERS

Nellie G. Zearfoss and Wilbur C. Zearfoss, of Chambersburg, have transferred a property to Preston J. Baumgardner and Bernice G. Baumgardner, of Hamiltonban township. The tract of land is located in Hamiltonban township. The transfer is recorded in the register and recorder's office in the court house.

Up Goes Gas

Washington, June 27 (AP)—An increase of 2½ cents a gallon in the retail price of gasoline and a 2 cent a gallon for ordinary domestic fuel oils and kerosene was approved for the Eastern seaboard today by the Office of Price Administration.

The increase effective Monday, is expected to finance increased costs of transporting petroleum products into the gasoline rationing area.

RITES MONDAY FOR MRS. EDEN

Mrs. Cora J. Eden, 68, wife of William J. Eden, West Confederate avenue, died this morning at 12:50 o'clock in the Warner hospital from coronary thrombosis. She had been admitted to the hospital last Sunday.

The deceased was born in Gettysburg, a daughter of the late John and Mary (Mackley) Williams, and resided all her life in Adams county. She was a member of Trinity Evangelical Reformed church.

In addition to her husband she is survived by the following children: Miss Mildred Eden, at home; Mrs. H. T. Jennings, Chambersburg; Mrs. Arthur R. Buehler, Gettysburg; Clair E. Eden, Baltimore Mrs. Martha Wolf, Baltimore, and Private Joseph Eden, Camp Pendleton, Virginia; 11 grandchildren, and three sisters, Miss Ada Williams and Mrs. George Taylor, both of Gettysburg, and Miss Alice Williams, Baltimore.

Funeral services from the Bender funeral home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock conducted by the Rev. Howard Schley Fox. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Sunday evening after 7 o'clock.

EXCEPTIONS FILED

Exceptions have been filed in the office of the prothonotary in the court house to the report of Raymond F. Topper, Esq., master in the divorce action of Violet May Raffensperger against Thomas H. Raffensperger. The master's report had denied the divorce. The exceptions were filed by Richard A. Brown, Esq.

RED CROSS NEEDS $351

The Little Thursday Bridge club of Gettysburg has contributed an additional $5 to the Red Cross war relief fund. The total in the fund now stands at $12,648.28. To meet the county's quota $351.72 are needed.

Alert Navy Gun Crew Hits Axis Sub; Is Believed Sunk

A Florida Port, June 27 (AP)—The alert Navy gun crew of a United States cargo ship hit and almost certainly sank an Axis submarine off the coast of Cuba, the master of the vessel said today.

Capt. John E. Ellison of Upper Darby, Pa., said the raider was taken by surprise and did not have time to fire torpedoes or get its deck guns into action. Its machine gun went into action and about 30 bullets struck the ship without doing any damage.

The American ship's engines were not running, so the submarine apparently had not been warned of its presence by listening devices and was caught by surprise as it came to the surface, Captain Ellison said.

Edwin L. Smith, 19, of Fayette, Miss., gun crew lookout, sighted the raider as it broke water some 400 yards from the ship. He gave the alarm for the gun outfit, Captain Ellison said, and within a minute all five men were at their stations and firing.

Almost simultaneously First Mate L. B. Hansen of New Orleans, saw the sub and reported to Captain Ellison. The master sounded the general alarm for the entire crew, and ordered full speed ahead, steering to allow the gun at the stern to bear on the raider.

The first shot from the merchantman was a near miss. The second, fired at about 200 feet, point blank range, struck the submarine at the water line, just forward of the conning tower, as the craft seemed to be crash-diving.

At this shot "there was a muffled explosion, and the submarine turned over sideways as it went down," Hansen said.

"There is no doubt in my mind that we got the sub," he added. "The whole thing didn't last over three minutes."

COUNTY YOUTHS WILL REGISTER AT 7 CENTERS

Eleven hundred youths are expected to enroll in the fifth draft registration that will be conducted by the Adams county Selective Service boards next Tuesday, June 30.

The registration, which will be conducted at seven centers throughout the county, will list all men who were born on or after January 1, 1922 and on or before June 30, 1924.

Youths Covered

Youths covered in the registration are those who are 18 and 19 years old and those who reached their twentieth birthday anniversary since December 31, 1941.

The seven centers will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. Each one will be in charge of designated persons with a staff of assistants to help enroll the registrants.

District No. 1 Centers

Registration places for countians in the area served by District No. 1 follow with the chairmen in charge of each:

York Springs high school, P. Lawrence Hoover and Mrs. Grace I. Butt.

Littlestown fire engine house, William J. Yingling.

McSherrystown engine house, E. L. Golden.

New Oxford draft board office, Mrs. Laura S. Freed.

Registration in District No. 2

In District No. 2 the three registration locations and the chairman at each will be:

Gettysburg draft board office, in First National bank building, Dr. R. D. Wickerham.

Biglerville fire engine house, M. E. Knouse.

Fairfield National bank building, John C. Bream.

Permanent Address Vital

Selective Service officials have announced that the permanent address given by a youth in the registration will determine which local board will handle his case.

The address entered on the second line of the registration card will be considered permanent, explained Col. B. F. Evans, acting state director, who added: "It is to the registrant's advantage to be registered with a local board near his home."

The third line on the card will be for a temporary address that may be changed.

Have Data Ready

No draft lottery will be held for these registrants. Serial and order numbers will be assigned according to birth dates, Colonel Evans declared.

In order to facilitate the work of the registrars at the seven centers in the county, the youths are requested by Selective Service officials to have the necessary data ready. This information includes date of birth, residence (especially where it is a township) and telephone number.

The registrars who will assist at the various registration centers follow:

GETTYSBURG—Miss Viola Sachs, Miss Edna Eicholtz, Miss Margaret McIlhenny, Miss Janet Scott, John Grinder, Jacob Britcher and Lawrence Myers.

M'SHERRYSTOWN—6:45 a. m. to 2:15 p. m.—Mrs. Golda Weaver, Mrs. Eva Gobrecht, Miss Myrtle Kauffman, Miss Kathryn Little, Miss Sara Staub and Miss Dessa

RURAL POSTAL CARRIERS WILL SELL U.S. BONDS

Adams county's rural mail carriers will do double duty for Uncle Sam beginning July 1st when they will start to act as salesmen for war bonds.

By order of the Third Assistant Postmaster General all rural carriers will receive orders for war bonds and make delivery of same after the first of next month.

The official order follows:

"Postmasters from whose offices rural routes emanate shall arrange to have rural carriers accept applications for War Savings Bonds. The purchasers will pay for the bonds at the time of making application. Payment may be made in cash or War Savings Stamps, or by check. The carrier will give a receipt for the purchase price.

To Make Deliveries

"Applications for War Savings Bonds must be legible and must show all details called for by the application form. If the issued bond is to be returned to the person and address shown on the application, no further directions will be required. If supplemental instruc-

Uneeda peaches were offered for sale at 15 cents a quart box at the Farmers' market this morning. The peaches were sold for the first time this year on Tuesday.

Other prices at the market, where attendance was curtailed by the rain today, follow:

Black raspberries, 20 cents a box; red raspberries, 25 cents a box; sour cherries, two boxes for 25 cents; apples, 15 cents a quarter peck and 30 cents a half peck; new potatoes, 15 cents a box; peas, 15 cents a box; beans, 10 cents a box; eggs, 31 cents a dozen, and dressed chicken, 38 and 45 cents a pound.

German Leaders Want To Occupy "All Of France"

London, June 27 (AP)—German military leaders are urging Adolf Hitler to occupy all France to meet the growing threat of an Allied attempt to establish a second front in western Europe, an unusually well-informed foreign source declared today.

At the same time the independent French news agency at Beirut reported that 500,000 Italian soldiers were concentrated in northern Italy ready to move into France to reinforce the German army of occupation.

Guns to West Coast

The intimation that the Nazis might be preparing to take over the third of conquered France which still is unoccupied was said to have come through "trustworthy underground channels"—the same channels which recently reported that the Germans were moving heavy guns from the Maginot and Siegfried lines to the French west coast.

The source credited with relaying this information also said he had been informed more than 1,000,000 French residents have been evacuated from the coastal areas in connection with the German defense preparations.

(Editor's note: Roy Porter, Associated Press foreign correspondent, returned to the United States last November after more than four years covering the news in France.)

May Face Setback

New York, June 27 (AP)—If Adolf Hitler moves to occupy all France—a step which dispatches from London indicate he is considering—the German fuehrer may meet one of the first major setbacks he has encountered in dealing with the conquered peoples of Europe.

For the minute that Hitler pushes into the unoccupied third of France he will automatically set off a blaze of fireworks that can well turn into a French revolution.

It is exactly what the French have been waiting for—just as they have been waiting for an announcement from Washington that there is to be a "second front" established in western Europe.

The most recent word from occupied France—which is not yet outdated—is that there is rebellion and antagonism brewing in the territory. Obviously, the French people have no guns with which to shoot—but they are ready to shoot the instant anyone can bring them the guns.

"Prepared, Waiting"

"We connot fight machine guns with pitchforks," one Frenchman said to me only a few days ago. "But we are prepared and waiting; just bring us some weapons."

The things the French have not forgotten are these:

The slaughter of more than 200,000 civilians in the refugee-clogged roads from the northern battlefronts during May and June of 1940.

The "passive" occupation of two-thirds of the country and the rifling of French economy by the Germans, paying off in inflation francs, printed at will on German presses.

The capture and detention of more than 1,500,000 prisoners of war—the majority of whom still are in German prison camps.

"Yes, We'll Keep 'Em Coming"

The following excerpt was taken from a letter received by The Gettysburg Times today from Sergeant Bernard E. Williams, formerly of Fairfield, now with the armed services on a foreign front:

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the unlimited interest you have shown the men of the armed forces. I am certain that each of the local boys in the services enjoy your contribution to the cause as well as I. So 'keep 'em coming' and we will do our best to 'keep 'em going.'"

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, June 27 (AP)—The Red Army has checked the new German offensive in the Ukraine, repulsing enemy attacks east of Kupyansk and at one point counterattacking, while the German gain on the Sevastopol front is measured in yards after the bloodiest kind of fighting, Soviet military dispatches said today.

Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans who were forced into retreat by the Russian counterdrive at Kupyansk on the Oskol river 60 miles southeast of Kharkov, the reports said.

At Sevastopol, the Red Fleet Navy base in the Crimea, the Germans were estimated to have hurled 50 trainloads of bombs, shells and mines into an effort to breach the defenses, but their gains were said to have netted them only a few dozen yards in two sectors.

Assault Groups Dwindle

A Sevastopol report to Pravda, the Communist party organ, said the Germans continued to move up reserves and "the presence of several new infantry regiments evidently transferred from another front has been noted in the last few days."

At the same time it was declared that assault groups there had dwindled from regiments or whole divisions to companies and battalions, an evidence of the strain of the campaign upon Axis manpower.

The Nazis have hurled more than 50 trainloads of bombs, shells and mines upon Sevastopal, said Pravda, but still its defenses hold.

The organ estimated the German losses in the assaults at 200 tanks, hundreds of aircraft and more than 50,000 men killed and wounded.

As a rule the engagements about the beleaguered fortress begin with long-range artillery fire and end up in hand-to-hand combat which sometimes rages for hours in the trenches, said Pravda's correspondent.

Reds Counter-Attack

In 10 days, one unit beat off about 50 such attacks, he added.

"The heroism of the Sevastopol garrison, its unwavering staunchness and devotion to duty stand out with utter clarity," he declared.

On the Kharkov front the battles were said to be of "exceptionally fierce character."

Massed air attacks by the Germans were being matched by mighty Russian counterattacks with tanks.

In one sector, 31 air battles were fought in a single day and 51 German planes were destroyed, said Russian reports.

(The German high command announced last night that Nazi and Rumanian troops had captured Izyum, a railroad town on the west bank of the Donets river 70 miles southeast of Kharkov, after bitter street fighting. German control of the whole triangular area between Kharkov, Izyum and newly-occupied Kupyansk was implied.)

YOUTH KILLED IN FAR EAST

Second Lieutenant Robert Love, a former member of the class of 1942 at Gettysburg college, was killed in an airplane accident in the "far eastern theatre of war," according to information received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Love, of Wayne, Pa.

The War department informed Mr. and Mrs. Love that their son's death was not due to enemy action.

Lieutenant Love enlisted in the Air Corps in April, 1941, after attending Gettysburg college three years. He was 22 years old.

While a student at college here Lieutenant Love was active in athletics. During his freshman and sophomore years he was a member of the track and swimming teams. He also played freshman football and in his second year he was a member of the soccer team.

Some of his other activities included membership on the Soph-Frosh Hop committee for two years and a place on the staff of the 1942 Spectrum, college yearbook.

Lieutenant Love was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

MORE SIRENS ARE NEEDED FOR DEFENSE

Harrisburg, June 27 (AP)—Pennsylvania's first large-scale blackouts disclosed "a small percentage of our people still believe this is child's play and therefore it's ridiculous to ask them to spend money or effort or suffer inconveniences by such practices," Dr. A. C. Marts, state defense council director, observed today.

"On the opposite side," he said of this week's three dusk-to-dawn tests of air raid precautions, "we learned 90 per cent of our people took part enthusiastically and wholeheartedly and were glad for the instruction.

Need More Sirens

"All in all, based on reports from all over the commonwealth, we can say that it was a fine demonstration. It was the most important stimulus we have had thus far for the actual competition of blackout plans and organization."

The civilian defense chief asserted that "we still do not have enough sirens in many of our cities for the alarms to reach all the people." He said audible alarms must be greatly increased and a way devised to reach people in rural areas.

He noted lack of co-ordination in that councils of defense have no way of knowing what loca lindustrial plants are unde rblackout control of the War and Navy departments.

"We are pleased by the response of people to the request that they abstain from using the telephones," stated Dr. Marts. "Calls decreased to almost nothing during the half-hour complete blackouts."

START BUS SERVICE

Harrisburg, June 27 (AP)—Bus service for 500 war workers, living between Ephrata and Downingtown, was started yesterday by the Horseshoe line. The new route joins three others serving the defense-important Coatesville area.

TO CLOSE LABORATORY

Carlisle, Pa., June 27 (AP)—The United States Entomological laboratory, established here 25 years ago, will be closed June 20 in a Department of Agriculture economy move.

Wedding

Slonaker—Tressler

Miss Bessie Tressler, daughter of Emanuel Tressler, Fairfield R. 1, and Pvt. Allen Slonaker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Slonaker, also of Fairfield R. 1, were united in marriage last Saturday evening in the Taneytown Presbyterian church by the Rev. Charles Owen. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate families.

Miss Helen Tressler, sister of the bride, and Harry Slonaker, brother of the bridegroom, were the attendants.

The bride was dressed in a light blue gown and wore a corsage of pink roses.

Following the ceremony the couple took a four-day wedding trip through West Virginia and Ohio.

The bride is employed at the Keystone Garment factory here. Private Slonaker is stationed at Camp Thalia, near Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Seek Civilians For Federal Projects

The United States Civil Service commission has modified the requirements for four types of scientific positions in an effort to secure additional qualified persons for civilian work in federal war agencies, both in the nation and abroad.

Appointments are to be made immediately in the fields of metallurgy, physics, meteorology and chemistry. Appointees will work with specific problems in one of the four fields. Most of the problems will be connected with some phase of the war program. Salaries for the positions range from $2,600 to $5,600 a year.

No written test will be given. Applicants will be judged from their experience, education and training. Applications will be accepted until the needs of the service have been met, and must be filed with the Civil Service commission, Washington, D. C.

Announcements and forms for applying for the scientific positions may be secured from the secretary of the local Civil Service board at the post office here.

Need More Room At Orphans' Home

Uniontown, Pa., June 27 (AP)—More than 15,000 gathered here today to participate in the annual gala parade of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, with State Adjutant General Edward Martin scheduled to be among the reviewers.

The air was filled with the blare of bands and the booming of drums as the band, drum corps and drill competition got under way after being postponed yesterday due to weather.

At the final business session William H. Bechtel of Philadelphia, was virtually unopposed for commander. He is senior vice commander.

In reporting yesterday to the delegates, Jerry Allen, superintendent of the organization's Scotland orphans home said it now is overcrowded with 390 orphans. He added that the Legislature will be asked to arrange for an expansion, adding that "there is a new generation of soldiers' orphans in the offing and now is the time to prepare for them."

Charles C. Hill, director, will be assigned to a new post in Maryland.

It is estimated that 10,000 safety engineers will be needed by the United States within a year.

"Allies To Divert German Strength From Reds"—FDR

Washington, June 27 (AP)—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of Britain declared in a joint statement today that "coming operations" of the United Nations "will divert German strength from the attack on Russia."

"While exact plans, for obvious reasons, can not be disclosed," said the joint statement released simultaneously in Washington and London, "it can be said that the coming operations, which were discussed in detail at our Washington conference between ourselves and our respective military advisers, will divert German strength from the attack on Russia."

The statement also said it was hoped that as a result of other steps "planned" at the week of Roosevelt-Churchill conferences concluded Thursday, "the respective navies will further reduce the toll of merchant shipping."

Withholding the time and other details of what may come now, the statement declared the United Nations, as a result of the conferences, "have never been in such hearty and detailed agreement on plans for winning the war as they are today."

The two leaders applauded Russia's gallant resistance to the "main attack" being made by Germany and rejoiced in the "magnificent resistance" of the Chinese army.

They added that detailed discussions were held with military advisers of the United Nations on "methods to be adopted against Japan and the relief of China."

23 Attackers Of Japan Get U. S. Crosses

Washington, June 27 (AP)—Twenty-three Army fliers who took part in the American raid on Japan last April 18 received Distinguished Flying Crosses today at nearby Bolling Field.

The airmen, who returned to this country recently, brought additional details of the havoc and confusion wrought by the raiders in attacking Tokyo and four other cities on April 18. They also disclosed that the secret Nordon bombsights were left behind because of risk they might fall into enemy hands.

ARMY BOMBER CRASHES AT BELLEFONTE

Bellefonte, Pa., June 27 (AP)—A large U.S. Army bomber made a crash landing near the Bellefonte airport last night but all members of its four-man crew escaped injury.

The big plane, nearly out of gas and the vision of its pilot blurred by a heavy rain, overshot the field and rammed a tree near the farm home of Harry Garbrick.

In the bomber were two officers and two enlisted men. The officers identified themselves as Lieuts. W. L. Jernigan and J. C. Fitzgerald. They declined to give any other details except to say:

"We were darn glad to get down."

The manager of the Bellefonte airport described the crash landing this way:

"It was just at that time of evening when it's hardest to see the beacon lights. Clouds were thick over the mountains and it was raining hard when the plane came in sight. They were headed east.

Family Escapes

"The ship made one circle of the field and then came down.

"The pilot said the rain obscured his vision and that he was nearly out of gas. I think his radio was out of order too."

Other witnesses said the plane bounced 500 yards after first touching the ground, demolished a small private hangar at the edge of the field, struck a combination garage and corn shed on the Gabrick farm and then hit a tree. One wing was ripped from the ship and its motors were damaged.

Gabrick, his daughter, Mrs. Harold Yarnell, and his son, Richard, 10, narrowly escaped injury in the mishap. They were standing near the garage watching the plane's attempt to land.

"I saw the plane coming and thought it would miss the barn," declared Gabrick, "it was on us before we knew it."

Upper Communities

Prof. and Mrs. Harvey S. Bolan and three children, of Lebanon, have opened their cottage at Peach Glen.

Mrs. C. H. Musselman and daughter, Mrs. L. Musselman Arnold, accompanied Mrs. Arnold's son, Tommy, to Camp Shohola, near Greely, Pa., today where he will spend July.

Mrs. M. A. Sternat and Lawrence LaErie, Baltimore, are week-end guests of Mrs. Sternat's son and daughter-in-law, the Rev. and Mrs. H. W. Sternat, Biglerville.

Jack Miller, a student at Penn State college, is spending the week-end with his father, John D. Miller, and Mrs. Miller, Biglerville.

"The Best Use of the Bible" will be the topic discussed by Dale Roth at the Christian Endeavor meeting of the Biglerville United Brethren church Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Margaret Draper, Biglerville, has gone to Buck Hill Falls where she will serve as head counsellor of the Camp Club of the inn.

Miss Muriel Larsen, Staten Island, New York, and Private Arthur E. Rice, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, are spending the week-end with Private Rice's mother, Mrs. Arthur E. Rice, Biglerville.

Miss Joanna Meyer and Miss Patricia Meyer, Biglerville, entered the Happy Valley camp, near Port Deposit, Maryland, today where they will spend July and August.

The Biglerville school board met in special session Friday evening for final adoption of the new budget.

Donald Coddington, Paxtang, is a week-end guest of Jack Miller, Biglerville.

Outer China—Manchuria, Mongolia and Tibet—has an area of 1,577,000 square miles.

TWO CONTROL PENNSYLVANIA EXPLOSIVES

Washington, June 27 (AP)—Two special investigators have been assigned to Pennsylvania by the Bureau of Mines as part of a war program to control non-military explosives and to forestall sabotage.

The program is nationwide and 46 of the 50 men already are on the job, including Edward Moore, with headquarters at Pittsburgh, and Norman King, at Wilkes-Barre.

Dr. R. R. Sayers, director of the bureau, ordered the investigators, acting under the authority of the war-time federal explosives act, to cooperate fully with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Army and Navy Intelligence and other federal agencies as well as with local officers.

Probe Disasters

Their primary task will be to investigate disasters and accidents involving explosives.

"Theft or loss of explosives, ingredients of explosives or explosives licenses must be reported immediately to the Bureau of Mines," Dr. Sayers said.

The investigators also are under orders to observe methods of handling, manufacturing or storing explosives and to recommend correctives for eliminating hazards. All reasonable recommendations must be obeyed.

Asserting that public cooperation was urgent, Dr. Sayers said that persons who observe anything questionable regarding possession or use of explosives should inform a licensing agent or an investigator.

RURAL POSTAL

tions for disposition of the issued bond are considered necessary, a separate letter should accompany the application.

"Postmasters at bond issuing offices will issue the bonds for applications received through their rural carriers, and arrange for delivery of the issued bonds as directed by the purchasers. Ordinarily, the bonds will be returned to the patrons by hand of the rural carriers, and in each such case the carrier will obtain receipt of the patron for the bond on the back of the receipt stub. This receipt must show the serial number of the bond and date delivered. Where necessary, or when desired by the patron, the bond may be delivered by official registered mail.

"Any fourth class post office not now designated to issue War Savings Bonds will be so designated upon request of the postmaster. This should be done where there is substantial demand for these bonds. Requests for such designation should be directed to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Division of Postal Savings, Washington, D. C."

The above arrangements provide a convenient channel through which many farmers and others in rural areas will be able to purchase War Savings Bonds by converting Savings Stamps into Bonds, by paying cash, or by personal check.

Hampton

Hampton—Mrs. Janet Kemper, Philadelphia, and two other ladies from Iowa, who were occupants in her car, escaped injury when the coupe in which they rode struck a culvert and hit a truck driven by Howard Triber, who owns and operates the local mill. The accident occurred about a quarter of a mile north of town at 3:10 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The women were driving north when the mishap occurred. Triber had entered the drive at the home of Tolbert Stainer to deliver feed. Damage to the truck was slight. The right side of the Kemper car and chassis were badly damaged. The car was towed to the H. R. Kime garage. No one was injured.

Private and Mrs. Eugene Lupp, Fort Meade, Madyland, were Friday visitors of the latter's sister, Mrs. Guy Shelleman.

Sharp Decrease In Relief Rolls

Harrisburg, June 27 (AP)—Pennsylvania relief and WPA rolls stood at 559,000 May 31, a drop of 373,000 from the comparable 1941 total and a decrease of 40,000 from the April figure.

Howard L. Russell, assistance secretary, said today the reduction from April was the sharpest of the past 10 months.

"Because of an unprecedented demand for labor," he added, "employment has been obtained by many persons who are usually handicapped in the competition for jobs by disadvantages of age, race, physical condition, or training and experience."

Persons dependent upon state and federal funds are divided as follows: 83,766, relief; 98,385, old age assistance; 202,985, aid to dependent children; 13,913, blind pensions, and 166,000 WPA.

Wanted: Donors for Plasma Bank at Annie M. Warner Hospital

separation, extreme care must be taken in preparing the blood for its "whirl" in the centrifuge.

The centrifuge has space for four bottle of blood. It cannot be operated with less than two bottles. When two bottles are placed in the machine they rest in opposite positions. It is necessary that the bottles of blood, that have been placed in special brass cups, weigh exactly the same. The differences in the weight of the cups and their bottles are aligned by adding additional water to the cup that is too light.

Lengthy Process

When the cups, containing the bottles of blood, are of equal weight the process of separating the plasma from the red cells begins. To achieve this separation, the bottles are whirled in the centrifuge for one hour at a speed of 2,500 revolutions each minute.

During this hour's time, each bottle will make 150,000 revolutions. If the circles formed by the bottles during the whirling process were broken and placed in a straight line the distance would equal about 122 miles.

Even though the centrifuge whirls the bottles at 2,500 R.P.M., the absence of any vibration can be proved by placing a coin on edge on top of the machine. It will stand in that position throughout the full hour despite the high speed of the mechanism immediately underneath.

The centrifuge is now being used extensively by the Army and Navy and gradually is being used widely in defense activities. There are very few available for private use today. The Warner hospital secured its centrifuge last year.

Plasma Withdrawn

When the bottle of blood emerges from the centrifuge there is a clear amber liquid at the top of a mass of red blood cells at the bottom. This bottle is placed in a refrigerator for at least a day—and at the end of that time the plasma—or clear liquid at the top—is drawn out of the bottle and placed in another bottle. It has been found by experience at the Warner hospital that three half-pints of blood will product about a pint of plasma.

After the plasma has been setured it is cultured; that is, examined to see that there has been no bacterial contamination. If the culture shows no growth after being kept for ten days, the plasma is ready for use in transfusions.

During the entire process, which requires a minimum of twelve days, the plasma is never touched by human hands.

There are several different ways to store plasma.

At room temperature it can be kept for several months. The Warner hospital stores its plasma in a refrigerator that is kept at four degrees centigrade. In this manner of storage it can be kept for a year without losing its properties.

May be Frozen

Plasma also may be frozen and kept indefinitely. Since the start of the war it also has been dried and prepared for shipping to the war zones.

Although plasma was first mentioned during the first World war, it was not until the last ten years that any extensive research had been performed. In the early 1930's experiments were conducted on animals. Plasma transfusions for individuals have become general during the last two years.

The principal advantage of plasma for use in transfusions lies in the fact it can be used in any emergency without the delay that is caused by trying to find the right type of blood for a recipient. The plasma that the Warner hospital will store as its "bank" grows can be used in any transfuion, regardless of the type of the donor's blood or that of the recipient.

Where the plasma method is not employed it still is necessary to follow the typing method of transfusions.

Donors are Needed

The system being used at the Warner hospital is known as the Baxter vacuum technique James Kirkwood, of Caledonia, is a representative for the Baxter firm and now is engaged in this type of defense work in Washington with the Army and Navy.

The Warner hospital's surgical department, headed by Dr. Bruce N. Wolff and Dr. Roy W. Gifford, and the laboratory department, conducted by Dr. C. Harold Johnson, cooperate in the production of the plasma "bank."

Doctor Johnson recently studied the process at the Naval hospital in Washington. He also attended a recent meeting of the Association of Hopital Laboratories in Philadelphia, at which time Dr. Max Strumia, of Bryn Mawr hospital, was the speaker. Doctor Strumia is one of the leading plasma authorities in the country.

In order to build its "blood bank" the local hospital needs many donors. Anyone wishing to volunteer for this service can do so by notifying the hospital. Donors of blood feel no after-affects, physicians explain. A donor usually is limited to a diet of unbuttered bread or toast and tea or coffee without cream during the twelve hours before the blood is drawn. Butter, cream, chocolate and similar foods contain large proportions of fat and the presence of fat in the blood causes the plasma to be clouded. This clouded condition, however, does not prevent its use.

Twelve Donors

The Warner hospital used the first plasma from its own "blood bank" on June 20. Plasma has been used here in the past but it was necerrary to buy it from a medicine firm at a cost of approximately $40 a half pint.

And now, if you would like to add your name to the list of donors to the "bank" all that is necessary is a telephone call to the Warner hospital.

The volunteer donors to date include Cameron Hoffman, Clarence Reaver, John Livingston, Charles Haines, George Livingston, Horace Bender, Lester Johnson, Ward Maines, Samuel Frank, Edward Sidpe, Marine Wolff and Robert Woolf.

Brooklyn Dodgers Replace New York Yankees As "Runaway" Team Of Majors

YANKEES BOW TO CHICAGO; BROWNS WIN

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

(By The Associated Press)

It may not be a tipoff on the world series. The outcome of the pennant races, or even the coming all-star-game, but the Brooklyn Dodgers have replaced the New York Yankees as the runaway team of the major leagues.

The transition of recent days has left the Dodgers with a National league lead three games longer than the Yankees enjoy in the American loop.

The Dodgers stretched their margin to nine and a half games. Their longest of the year, yesterday by clipping the Cincinnati Reds 5-4. In ten innings for their eighth victory in ten starts since their return to Ebbets Field.

Yankees Lose

And in a night game at Chicago, the Yankees bowed to the White Sox for the first time since last Aug. 25 as hard-luck Edgar Smith, who was the last Chicago pitcher to stop the bombers, hurled his way to a 4-2 decision, his second of the season against 11 defeats.

That reversal, coupled with the Boston Red Sox triumph over Cleveland, left the world champs only six and a half games ahead of Boston.

Smith, one of three pitchers who celebrated their selection for the July 6 all-star game with victories yesterday, yielded only six hits, one of which was Charlie Keller's eighth homer behind a double by Joe DiMaggio.

Like Smith, Al Benton of the Detroit Tigers and Cliff Melton of the New York Giants turned in sparkling performances to justify their all-star nominations.

Benton tossed a six-hitter at the Philadelphia Athletics as Pinky Higgins chipped in with two doubles to lead the Tigers to a 3-1 victory.

Dick Newsome also gave up only a half dozen blows in hurling the Red Sox to their 3-2 triumph over the Indians in a night game and four of them went to Les Fleming.

The St. Louis Browns halted a four-game losing streak by rapping Buck Newsom and the Washington Senators, 8-5, in a night game.

A tenth-inning squeeze play scored the run that gave Brooklyn its triumph over the Reds and handed undefeated Larry French his seventh mound triumph, although he worked only the last two innings. Dolph Camilli hammered his 11th homer to tie the score for the third time in the eighth, and Peewee Reese bunted home the winning marker with the bases loaded. Joe Medwick went hitless, ending his batting streak at 27 games, six short of Rogers Hornsby's National league record.

Foxx Gets Homer

Melton notched his ninth win compared with five losses by holding the Pittsburgh Pirates to a half dozen safeties and contributed further to the 4-2 Giant victory by bagging two of his team's six hits. Five Buc errors helped the New Yorkers.

Jimmy Foxx clouted his first home run since switching to the National league, a two-run blast with two out in the ninth inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 6-4 decision over the Boston Braves.

The St. Louis Cardinals' night contest with the tail-end Philadelphia Phils was postponed.

Norfolk, Va.—Ken Overlin, 165¾, U.S. Navy, and Fred Apostoli, 160½, U. S. Navy, drew (10).

Boston—Sal Bartolo, 129, New York, won by technical knockout over Jerry Zullo, 133, Chelsea, Mass. (9).

Burlington, Vt.—Buster Beaupre, 139, Burlington, outpointed Frankie Conti, 137, Haverhill, Mass. (10).

Hollywood—Richie Lemos, 133½, Los Angeles, won by technical knockout over Bobbie (Poison) Ivy, 134, Hartford, Conn.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, June 27 (AP)—Twilight baseball isn't popular with the players, but it may be one answer to the questions the club owners are asking . . . If they can continue to draw the kind of crowds they've been getting recently, it will make up for a lot of week-day afternoons when they have to include the ushers to make the crowd big enough to count . . . At least there's one lesson they should be learning from these and the relief games—that the customers have to be coaxed, and sometimes bludgeoned, to get them out in profitable numbers . . . The big argument preceding the Apostoli-Overlin scrap at Norfolk last night concerned whether Fred or Ken was faster when they were hopping bells in hotels at San Francisco and Decater, Ills., respectively . . . Bobby Feller is slated for sea duty right after the service all-star game in Cleveland.

HARRINGTON RAISING ADVENTURE

Hago Harrington, old-time hockey star who coaches the Boston Olympics, was driving through Boston when the recent air-raid test was held . . . A feminine warden halted his car and while they waited for the "all clear" she remarked: "I have a whole oven full of cakes and this raid had to happen. I don't know what I'll do." . . . rising gallantly to the occasion, Hago replied: "Lady, give me that arm band and you run home and save those cakes." . . . and that's how they managed it.

SERVICE DEPARTMENT

Freddie MaGuire, former Boston Braves infielder, is the latest addition to the Camp Edwards, Mass., baseball coaching staff that includes Joe Dugan of the Yanks, Joe Gilmore of the A's and Jack Ryan of the Red Sox . . . First edition of "The Word," camp newspaper of the New River, N. C., Marine Training center, forwarded by 2nd Lieut. Steve Stavers, features a military track and field meet. Events include a 60-yard dash with fixed bayonets, obstacle course race, hand grenade throwing for distance and accuracy and, appropriately, a tug of war . . . Lieut. George O'Brien, former movie hero who is welfare officer at the San Diego, Calif., naval training station, has gone into retirement as a fight referee. He worked a series of bouts in his bare feet recently and came up with a fine crop of sun blisters.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Charles P. Ward, Detroit Free Press: "The master minds of the prize fight industry got Jack Dempsey into an unsavory mess during the last war and the master minds of the prize fight industry may get Joe Louis into a mess in this war if somebody doesn't prevail upon them to cease and desist in their master-minding."

NEIGHBORHOOD RIVALRY

Folks down in Frederick county, Maryland have a real problem when the Yankees play the Browns . . . the rival left fielders, Charlie Keller and Glenn McQuillen, both are Frederick county boys and started playing ball for their school teams. Keller comes from Middletown and went up to the Yanks by way of Maryland U. and Newark; McQuillen, from Brunswick, rose vie Western Maryland and Toledo.

CLEANING THE CUFF

Jesse Owens, now a recreation specialist in the division of Defense Health and Welfare of the Federal security agency, confines his sprinting to occasional exhibitions, but keeps in shape by playing golf, tennis and basketball . . . "Gol dern that golf," says Jesse, "I love to play but I just can't do any good." . . . Suggestion from George Herrick of the San Diego, Calif., Tribune-Sun: Make Jimmy Dykes pay a fine of $100 a game and let him beef at the umps as much as he wants to.

MORT COOPER WILL TWIRL IN STAR TILT

Philadelphia, June 27 (AP)—Rest or no rest, Mort Cooper will be in shape to pitch for the National League All-Stars against the American League Aces.

Billy Southworth, St. Louis Cardinals' manager, promised that today although he did not say he would save his mound sensation for the All-Star test in New York July 6 by passing his regular pitching turn.

"We're in a tough battle to win the pennant and we're intent on winning every game we can," the mild-mannered Southworth explained. "If I need Cooper just before the All-Star game, I'm going to use him."

Cooper, who has won 10 games this year, including six shutouts, while losing only three, each by one run, is scheduled to pitch in St. Louis Tuesday and may take the hill again next Saturday.

"I'd like to see Mort go into that All-Star game with a good rest so that he can show his best," said Southworth, "but even if our pitching schedule should be shifted, I'll still try not to use him on Sunday the day before the game."

Billy expressed regret he could not promise a longer rest for Cooper and added:

"He's in swell shape and should be able to go three innings in top form with little trouble."

Mort and his Cardinal teammates will fly from St. Louis to New York the night before the All-Star game after playing a Sunday doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs.

GOLFERS MAY SET NEW MARK

Girard, O., June 27 (AP)—What began as pre-tournament speculation moved into the realm of possibility today—that the world record 264 for Major league golf competition might be tied or bettered in the second $5,000 Mahoning Valley Open.

Mahoning's revamped par of 34-34—68 took a merry beating in the first 18 holes yesterday, the lead going to three campaigners who were four under regulation figures—Horton Smith of Pinehurst, North Caroline; Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot artist from Abingdon, Pa., and Sam Byrd, the ex-Yankee outfielder from Ardmore, Pa.

In the second spot at 65 a young local pro, Jack Miskell, was tied with Lloyd Mangrum of Oakmont, Pa.

By registering a 31-35, defending champion Clayton Heafner of Durham, North Carolina, found himself bracketed at 66 with Jimmy Thomson of Del Monte, California, Rod Munday of Toledo and Dutch Harrison of Harrisburg, Pa.

Back at 67 was Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., the habitual money winner who garnered the recent Hale America and started as a favorite in the local test. With him were Herman Keiser of Akron, Bill Burke of Cleveland, and a dark horse, Al Smith, of Martinsville, Virginia.

At par 68, were a Pennsylvania pair, Ted Blaner of Sharon, and R. G. Johnston of West Middlesex.

The people of Belgium speak two languages—French in the southern areas, Flemish in the north.

Whirlaway To Seek Big Purse Today

New York, June 27 (AP)—Whirlaway, who hopes to surpass Seabiscuit's $437,730 bank account sometime this summer, has a chance to add $23,900 to his winnings today in the Brooklyn handicap on a card that may clear another $100,000 for a trio of war organizations.

The champion of the handicap division heads a field of nine horses in the fifty-fourth running of the Aqueduct Park feature at which all proceeds, except for purses to horsemen, go to the Army and Navy Relief societies and to USO.

Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, which forced Whirlaway to a track record for a mile Monday, is expected to furnish most of the opposition.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press)

Three doubleheaders and a single game are on the Eastern League program tonight.

The twin bills find Albany taking on league-leading Wilkes-Barre at the Barons' home diamond, Hartford at Williamsport, and Springfield at Elmira. Binghamton goes to Scranton for the single contest.

Weather forced postponement of last night's scheduled games.

Schoolgirl, 14, Wins Four Tennis Titles

Philadelphia, June 27 (AP)—Shirley Fry, 14-year-old Akron, Ohio, schoolgirl, won all four titles in the Middle Atlantic States lawn tennis tournament—and there's nothing small fry about that.

She became the first player ever to win the junior-junior singles (for girls up to 15) and the junior singles (up to 18) and the two doubles championships in both classes of the tournament.

The only other entrant to win anything was Sylvia Knowles, 14, Philadelphia. She was Miss Fry's doubles' partner.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

MAKING PEOPLE LIKE YOU

People will like you—if you like them. Simple enough—yet there are millions of people who wonder why they are not liked. We all hunger for appreciation and understanding. Not that we want to be flattered. Flattery has only a short life and there are few, if any, who court it, for it is usually saturated with insincerity.

Taking an interest in what the other fellow does, and the life he lives, is not wholly selfish. We learn more than we realize by it. It stimulates us to know someone else is blessed and has good fortune. It spurs us—and our encouragement to others invites them to take an interest in us, and in turn to give us a happy boost. When this becomes a wholly cooperative world, no one will ever think of trying to get what someone else has rightly earned.

Doing the unexpected for someone, going out of one's way to bring a ray of light into their life, and springing a surprise whenever possible, are what help to make a better day for us all—and incidentally is one way to make this a better world in which to live.

So many of us wonder how we can do some big thing to make other people happy, but it isn't the big things that count most, it is the simple, small things that become cumulative over the days.

A cheering letter, some flowers sent to a bedridden person, or to a shut-in, or a book that has delighted you, sent to a lover of books. These are small services, but they rate high and go so far as to make people like you and want to do something to make you happy.

A simple sentence uttered by a visiting art critic from Paris, many years ago, to reporters as he took his boat home, about the work of an obscure American artist, gave that artist fame over night! It doesn't cost any of us anything to say kind and encouraging things about other people—and it often is the means of lifting our own morale to an unimagined height.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

TIME

We who have spent a number, learn at last,
The years of life are squandered all too fast.

Youth with a purse full still, looks out ahead
And thinks each year a coin of heavy lead;

But one by one, for this and that, they go
And those first early payments scarcely show.

Then, by and by, so many Time's demands,
We find the years are slipping through our hands.

Thinner the wallet grows, and next year's coin
Its long spent fellows fairly flies to join.

Last, with few coins remaining,
comes the thought:
How much we've squandered and how little bought!

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

"Home in Wyomin'," the latest in Gene Autry's series of musical action dramas for Republic, will open Monday at the Majestic theatre for a two-day run.

Smiley Burnette has his customary comedy role in the new film, with a talented youngster, Joe Strauch, Jr., portraying Smiley's kid brother, a half-pint edition known as "Tadpole."

WEDNESDAY

Pat O'Brien and Brian Donlevy, as the rough, tough "Two Yanks in Trinidad," share co-starring honors at the Majestic theatre on Wednesday with lovely Janet Blair in Columbia's newest free-for-all of thrills, laughs. Fist-crashing, spy-smashing story of Uncle Sam's fighting men, "Two Yanks in Trinidad" was directed by Gregory Ratoff and produced by Samuel Bischoff. The featured supporting cast includes Donald MacBride, Roger Clark and John Emery.

THURSDAY

The Weaver Brothers, who, with "Elviry" are under contract to Republic Studios, are true sons of the Ozarks. Their grandfather was founder of the town of Ozark, Missouri, migrating there from Tennessee. "Shepherd of the Ozarks," their latest picture, comes to the Majestic theatre next Thursday.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Paul Dresser, brother of Theodore Dreiser, composed many of America's outstanding popular songs. His most famous are "On the Banks of the Wabash" and "My Gal Sal," the latter of which is the title of the 20th Century-Fox Technicolor film which is due Friday at the Majestic theatre.

The story of "My Gal Sal" deals with Dresser's life, and stars Rita Hayworth, Victor Mature, John Sutton and Carole Landis, Irving Cummings directed the feature, which was produced by Robert Bassler.

Scrap Rubber Important Source

Rubber reclaimed from scrap always has been an important source of material for the U.S. rubber industry. For a long while from a third to a fourth of all the rubber processed each year has been reclaimed rubber. Reclaimed rubber mixed with new crude rubber from our stockpile will make good, sturdy rubber articles for military and essential civilian use. Now, with the Japs in control of the sources of more than 90 per cent of our normal crude rubber imports, scrap rubber is more important than ever before. We need every ounce we can scrape up, to make our stockpile of crude rubber last.

Now is the time to get your collection of scrap rubber down to the nearest filling station.

Riding with Russell

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. by FREDERICK C. RUSSELL, Member S. A. E.

Many a motorist has found that where there's a will there's a relative.

Tailored to Fit

I have been talking with some experts on the subject of summertime rust inhibitors to be used in the cooling system and they definitely believe that it is best for car owners to buy prepared inhibitors rather than buy emulsifying oil in bulk. Any soluable oil will, of course, check rusting, but they fell that where the oil is of known quality and packaged in just the right amount for the car there are ertain advantages which may mean money saved in the long run. Packaged inhibitors are, of course, more expensive than this oil bought in bulk, but the difference can be viewed as insurance. I checked into one of the popular brands of rust inhibitor and found that it contained a special chemical to check any tendency for the coolant to foam.

Little Savings Count

If you have been religiously putting into effect the numerous detailed rules for increasing gasoline mileage you are already noting what a difference they make when your total daily mileage is rationed. Whether you are quick to switch off the engine doesn't make much difference when you travel 100 miles for a day's business or pleasure trip, but when you roll the car a mere 7.5 miles, let us say, every minor savings is noticeable. One woman finds that if she leaves her car a block and half from the shopping center she can make three trips there a week instead of two, yet without increasing mileage. Another driver gets a half mile more use of his car daily by learning how to start the engine properly and by asking another member of the family to close the garage doors after he drives out. Just slowing down has helped a lot of drivers keep in time with traffic lights, thus saving stops and starts.

Bad Case of Stickage

Generalizing is always bad business. You hear it said that valve-in-head engines are not likely to develop valve stickage, but we should revise this to read "not so likely." They can, and do, develop stickage the same as any other type of poppet valve engine. Because the stems are above the cylinders, rather than on the sides, there is less chance for raw gasoline to reach the valve guides. Thus less chance of gums forming in the guides and on the stems. I saw a valve-in-head engine today with a valve so badly stuck that it had to be pried to a closed position. But—and this is why I'm writing this item—a pint of valve oil poured over the valve stems worked down the guides and smoothed out this engine in jig time. The owner got into this jam because he apparently thought the valves of his engine were beyond the risk of stickage, doing nothing to prevent it.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:

"Improving the electrical system by installing new and more direct wiring is in no way confined to the lighting and horn circuits. Sometimes we must revise the generator to battery circuit where high resistances may have developed.

"It is occasionally found that resistance in the wiring harness will force generator voltage to rise to a point where the charging rate drops. This will, of course, run down the battery even though the generator is in good condition. A way to get around this is to run a direct circuit from the insulated battery terminal to the regulator's battery terminal. This provides an electrical by-pass which will boost the charging rate, although this won't be shown on the ammeter."

Each Case Is Different

I still caution against following any set rule for rotating tires, contending that each individual case is different. What rule would apply, for instance, if you have two new tires on the rear and two old ones on the front? How would you go about the job if, as happens to be the actual case of a friend of mine, a structural fault in the car causes the left rear wheel's tire to wear rapidly?

The right rear tire is supposed to be the hardest working tire on the car, yet I have never had this tire wear as rapidly as the right front one. In my years of driving most of my tread wear has been on the right front tire in spite of my efforts at all times to keep the wheels properly lined, properly balanced and the tires correctly inflated.

One for the Book

Ever clean out the gas filter, install a new gasket and have the filter leak? This is always puzzling because the new gasket is installed to prevent any possibility of leakage. One owner put on two gaskets in succession, making sure that the second one was perfect as gaskets go. But still the filter leaked. It was a long dry story, but I'll just skip along to the answer. He had not been careful to see that all of the old gasket had been removed. Just enough remained to ruin the new gaskets' chances of holding.

Use the Trip Mileage

During rationing and limited use of the car you can use the trip portion of the odometer to good advantage in keeping a close check on those precious miles. Not all of the late model speedometers have this feature of the odometer part of the unit, but where it is available you should set the mileage back to zero when starting a rationed or limited use period. It will surprise you how quickly the miles roll up. You will also be pleasantly surprised to find how many miles you can save in the course of a week by not going all the way to your destination by car, by avoiding error in making errands and by not "going around the block" when you could save by turning around immediately.

Keep Oil Off Rubber

There is quite a difference in the way remote controls for modern gears are laid out but where the arms and rod are bushed with rubber care must be taken to see that no petroleum base oil gets on them. If shifting seems stiff the inclination is to raise the hood and squirt some oil on these connections, but don't. Oil rots the rubber and causes such excess play in the linkage that shifting is troublesome. A special rubber bushing lubricant is available, but it seldom is needed on these particular parts. It is designed more for rubber bushings which are subject to greater abuses.

Service Saves Gas

Wise drivers are discovering that it pays handsomely to have the car well serviced even if the chances of generous car use are remote for the duration. Breakdowns result in using up gas because it is necessary to make tests, to move the car around the shop and often to go back to the shop for further adjustments. Preventive service, on the other hand, can be purchased when you are coming home from business or during those many times when you would otherwise be using the car for necessary service. A friend of mine who could easily have saved trouble by changing oil more often and having the automatic choke adjusted recently had to have new rings put into the engine of his car. They burned up part of a week's supply of his rationed gas just breaking in the overhauled engine, and testing it.

What's Your Problem?

Q. There is a decided miss in the engine of my car and occasionally the engine won't start at all. Checking the high tension current from the coil it seems that the output is weak. Does this help you in deciding what's wrong—C. C. K.

A. The coil may be overheating due to defective insulation. I'd have the coil tested immediately. A draw of over 6 amperes will mean that the primary winding is shorted.

Q. I have heard that if I back the car into the garage I will save gasoline. Does this make sense?
—N. R.

A. Where a car is stored all day with the rear close to windowed garage doors on which the sun is shining the gas tank will heat up and fuel will be encouraged to evaporate. Putting the tank away from the sun will, under such conditions, save gas.

Q. I have been having difficulty starting the engine with the starter-motor. In looking over the situation I have found that the motor's armature doesn't rotate freely when I turn it by hand.—B. L. S.

A. The starter-motor isn't properly aligned. The bendix housing may be causing this. After replacing the housing and aligning the motor be sure to recheck ignition timing. A backfire may have been the original cause of the misalignment.

Q. When a car is not used for a long time should the clutch be left engaged or disengaged? I have been told that I should put a wooden block between the under side of the toeboard and the angle of the clutch pedal shaft. It seems to me this would tend to weaken the clutch springs.—L. B.

A. This method does weaken the clutch springs. A better plan is to declutch several times a week just to prevent the plates from sticking together. Can't you arrange to do this?

WESTERN PEN TO DEDICATE FIRST CHAPEL

Pittsburgh, June 27 (AP)—Western penitentiary's first chapel, built by prisoners with a total cash outlay of less than $100, will be dedicated tomorrow with a Catholic mass in the morning and a Protestant service in the afternoon.

The white, mission-style chapel was completed this week after a year of work by prisoners of many trades—carpenters, masons, cement workers, plasterers, plumbers, painters, electricians and metal-workers.

The Rev. A. W. Stermel, Protestant chaplain, said Western epnitentiary for years has conducted services in an auditorium which "does not provide a proper atmosphere for reverence and worship" because it is also used for shows, meetings, and other activities.

Use Old Hospital

Mr. Stremel and Father F. J. Huber, the Catholic chaplain, saw an opportunity to remedy this situation following the recent demolition of the penitentiary's 135-year-old hospital building. One wing of the building, relatively new and of heavy construction was not torn down, and the chaplains decided to use it as the basis for a chapel.

Architects provided remodeling plans. Then prisoners went to work altering walls, removing partitions, building a tower into the front.

Church groups contributed stained glass windows, a marble altar, and other parts of the chapel.

Father A. R. Hyland, Catholic chaplain of Clinton prison, Dannemora, N. Y., will speak at the Catholic ceremonies. The Protestant speaker will be Dr. J. W. Claudy, superintendent of Rockview farm prison at Bellefonte.

FALLS TO DEATH

Monessen, Pa., June 27 (AP)—Two construction workers, climbing down from a 10-foot scaffold, brushed against a live wire yesterday. William R. Tucker, 25, of Bowie, Tex., fell to the ground and was killed. Jerry Palmer, 25, of Monessen, received a slight hand burn. The men were helping build a coal crushing building which the Koppers Construction company is erecting for a Pittsburgh steel company plant.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Coxe

Chapter Nine

Bad News

Something ran swiftly along Joyce's nerves and left them cold and tingling. She put her hand on Delia's, and said, quickly: "But what did you do?"

"I jumped up and spilled my drink. I certainly didn't want to be found alone with Perry Clarke. He must have been a little upset too. He hurried me into a hall.

"'You can wait here if you like,' he said. I told him that I'd come back. Just thene the knocking started again, and so he said there was a door in the kitchen and I could go down the backstairs. 'And be sure you make it quiet,' he said."

Delia pressed Joyce's hand. "He went back to the living room and closed the door. I stood there a moment—the hall was lighted—and noticed that there were two rooms opposite each other. One was a bedroom."

"Delia!" Joyce caught her breath. "You didn't—"

"I did," Delia said. "The moment I thought of it I knew I'd do it. I was stiff with fright and yet I couldn't help it. No one could hear me, and something told me I'd have time. . . . Well, there were two bags in the closet and the first one I opened held two envelopes. One was thick and bulky and I opened the flap. It was filled with money—or bonds or stock of some kind—and lots of it. . . . Well, I knew that couldn't be what Ward wanted so I put it back and picked up the other one. When I saw what was in it, I took it."

Joyce leaned back, unable to summon any further capacity for surprise.

"All right," she said. "What was in it?"

"Wait until I tell you the rest," Delia said. "I went back in the hall—I could hear voices but I couldn't hear what was said—and tiptoed through the kitchen and out the back door. I was actually shaking I was so excited, and I kept stumbling and feeling my way along in the darkness. Finally I got outside, but it was just as dark there, although I could see a street light at the end of the alley. I hurried back to the corner and started across the street in front of the apartment house where I'd parked. And then, just before I'd reached my car, I saw Ward's coupe. It was three or four cars behind me and I wasn't positive at first so I stepped out in the street and walked up to it and made sure."

What to Do?

Somewhere down on the street, Joyce heard a car door slam, the sound of a motor in rapid acceleration—everything was quite again except the pounding of her heart. Aware at last that Delia was waiting for her reaction, she made the necessary adjustments and found her voice.

"It was Ward then who knocked?"

"It must have been," Delia said. "That's why I came straight here. At first I was going to wait for him and then I decided I'd better not. Perry Clarke is bound to know what happened to the envelope. I suppose he could have me arrested if he wanted to, couldn't he? After all, I did steal it."

"What about Ward?" Joyce asked.

"How do you mean?" Delia said. "It'll be all right, won't it? He probably went up there to get the envelope, and now it's safe and can't hurt him. Either he'll find out it's been stolen or he won't and by any case—" She hesitated, the excitement dying in her.

"Only—I don't know what to do about it. Will you keep it for me, in case the police do come?"

"I don't imagine they will," Joyce said. "Perhaps we'd better look at it."

Delia went to her coat and produced the envelope. Joyce took out four pieces of paper. Two of them were newspaper clippings printed in Spanish, one of them a two column story with a picture of Ward near the top. The other two, she saw at once, had nothing to do with Ward, but concerned Perry Clarke. The first was the photostatic copy of a marriage certificate, a French document dated in November, 1937, and stating that Hestor and Perry Clarke had been married in Paris; the second was a copy of a divorce, also issued in Paris, and bearing the date of August, 1938.

"I guess what I did was pretty awful," Delia said.

"Mad is the word," Joyce said, "and even that's an understatement." She gave her attention to the clippings. "Can you read Spanish?"

"Some."

"Do you know what these say?"

"Well—not really. I saw Ward's picture—and the headline. I'm not sure I want to know. I mean"—she paused, eyes anxious and disturbed—"do you think I should, Joyce? Oh, I don't know what to do."

The Call

Joyce realized what she meant. She had a smattering of Spanish, enough to know that the headline of one clipping said something about an American being arrested in a jewel theft, that the other announced Ward Allen had been released in $2,500 bail.

"Should I just seal the envelope and mail it to Ward?" Delia said. "And not let him know where it came from? Or should I tell him everything and let him know it doesn't matter to me?"

Joyce had been reading as the girl spoke, and from what she could gather from her sketchy translation it seemed that Ward had been the guest of a Countess de Ferani at a small party, which had lasted most of the night, accompanied by much drinking. Upon awakening later in the day the Countess had discovered the loss of a pearl necklace and a valuable bracelet which had been found subsequently in Ward Allen's rooms. . . .

She looked at Delia, wondering how much the girl knew, and just how she should advise her. She was saved from making a decision by the ringing of the telephone, and returned the papers to the envelope before she answered.

It was Kent.

"You in bed?" he asked. She told him no and he said: "Well, don't wait up for me, I may be very late."

"Oh," Joyce said. "All right, dear. Something special?"

"Murder. I ran into it on my way home." There was a moment of silence. "Maybe I should tell you. It's Perry Clarke."

Something cold stabbed at Joyce and her throat froze. She looked at Delia. The girl was watching her and slipping into her coat, her smile mildly curious. Joyce turned away, sick with horror and dismay, the growing silence piling up on her in heavy, stifling layers.

"Hey," Kent's voice said. "You there?"

"Yes." She found her voice and strove to discipline it. "You mean he—"

"Shot twice," Kent said. "And not so very long ago. I'll tell you all when I see you. 'Bye."

Joyce hung up slowly, summoning every resource so that she might face Delia calmly.

WE HAVE an immediate need for huge quantities of rubber. We want every bit of used rubber you can possibly spare. We are setting aside the period from June 15 to June 30 to get the old rubber in.

We have asked the filling station operators to help . . . And they have generously and patriotically agreed to help—they and the oil companies which serve them.

We want used rubber in every form. Take it to your nearest filling station.

One thing you can be sure of—we are going to see to it that there is enough rubber to build the planes to bomb Tokyo and Berlin—enough rubber to win this war.

—from President Roosevelt's radio address of June 12, 1942

BRING IN YOUR SCRAP RUBBER NOW

Take your old tires, garden hose, hot water bottles, etc., to any gasoline dealer . . . before July 1st

RUBBER . . . America's No. 1 Shortage

92% of the world's natural rubber resources are now in Axis hands.

So President Roosevelt has sent out an S. O. S. call urging every man, woman and child in America to get in the scrap.

To help speed your scrap rubber to the fighting fronts, the Service Stations and Garages—through its War Council—has quickly and unanimously mobilized almost a million employes and 400,000 service stations from coast to coast.

Every gasoline dealer's station is a scrap rubber collection depot. He is authorized to pay you a penny a pound for your scrap rubber, if you do not wish to donate it. Every ounce of rubber you turn over to him will be delivered to the Government without profit to the Oil Industry.

The need is urgent. The War won't wait. So get in as much as you can—as soon as you can!

Scour the attic, garage, cellar, yard, farm, for rubber articles like these:
